Opinionated metadata framework for modern data platforms

Servian's metadata framework

Creating, monitoring, and auditing data movement within modern multi-tool data platforms can be both challenging and time-consuming.

The variability in tool-specific metadata, the distributed nature of logging, and the intricate task of data governance in a multi-tool environment all converge on a single overarching metadata framework. Servian's metadata framework Meta is a proven solution empowering companies to accelerate the ingestion, movement, and transformation of data within their data platforms.

What is it

Meta is a scalable and extensible framework for creating metadata-driven data pipelines. Technical, operational, and business metadata is published into a central repository allowing easy access for engineering, operational, and business teams through a wide variety of tools.

What are the benefits

Developing and maintaining bespoke data pipelines in an ever-growing data platform can be time-consuming. Meta avoids this effort through the use of re-usable workflow patterns ensuring greater delivery consistency of data within the platform.

What we deliver

A scalable and extensible metadata framework accompanied by a standard set of operational workflows. The accompanied workflows enable interaction with the metadata framework from an organisation's selected toolset.
